CHARLOTTE STREET Burlington

~~~ ~~ ~~~

As real estate speculators such as Charles W. Scarff and A.O. Ferguson spurred the development of factories near Lake Champlain in the south end of Burlington, the need for housing grew proportionately. About six dwelling houses existed in the area, until Henry Conger began selling Lakeside lots at $250-500 for double housing units in 1894. At this time, the trolleys transported goods and people from downtown Burlington along Pine Street.

Though the industries took no interest in developing workers' housing, men such as S.P. Saxe and the Reverand Edward Hungerford responded to the need and built many tenement blocks in the area.

One hundred acres purchased by Scarff and Ferguson from the Foster Farm, northeast of the lakeside factory development, was divided into eighteen city blocks (south on Home Avenue, north on Flynn Avenue, east on Shelburne Road, west along the railroad tracks by the lake). The streets were named for the influential entrepreneurs in the city of Burlington (Richardson, Wells, Lyman, Flynn, etc.). Bungaloid, Colonial Revival and Dutch Colonial Revival homes sprang up, reflecting the popular building trends of this period.

The factories continued successfully into the twentieth-century but it was the 1920's war prosperity that brought improvement and growth to the neighborhoods. The Queen City Cotton Company established a baseball park, nursery, first aid station with a visiting nurse, sidewalks and shade trees. "There is a big community spirit at Lakeside now," said the Burlington Free Press (Feb 19, Aug 20, 1920).

Northeast of the Lakeside development, other streets, named after the developer's daughters (Caroline, Catherine, Charlotte, Margaret, Marian), or for the trees that lined curbs, (Locust) exhibited popular housing styles.

Neighborhood decline began by 1925, but was not apparent until 1935-37, when workers striked against the cotton mills; business dropped and land went up for sale, with tenants and employees having first options. The plants changed hands with General Electric taking over the old Queen City Cotton Company buildings in 1947.

Since the building boom in the 1920's and 1930's, the original Lakeside neighborhoods have remained basically unchanged.

While the farmlands were being developed west of Shelburne Road, to the east lay the Hickok, Buell and Cannon Estates. Individual contractors such as Alfred Perrotta began building on parcels of these lands, that were gradually sold for development (#8, 12, 22 Perrotta Place). The Willard Ledge Quarry, south of Ledge Road, which had been operating since 1805, ceased production in 1919 and eventually became Adams Court, Ludwig Court and Hoover Street, where the redstone walls abutt the backyards.

Street pattern growth has continued along both sides of Shelburne Road during the 1940's - 1960's, as the southern part of Burlington has expanded to today's suburban fringe.

ADDITIONAL ARCHITECTURAL OR STRUCTURAL DESCRIPTION: One and one half story gable front rectangular plan house with overlapping offset right front gable projection and gable porch with open pediment, box cornice, Tuscan columns, fascia trim, and corner boards. 4 vertical pane/2 sash windows with lip molds. Single pane raking window at gable front. South side hooded entrance with plywood brackets. Rear one-story shed roof addition. Off-center rear chimney. RELATED STRUCTURES: (Describe) STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE: This well preserved and unique house, with its double overlapping gable facade, is one of the later structures built on a street, which began its suburban, growth in the early 1920's. The present occupant believes the land was developed by Paul D. Kelly, who named the streets after his five daugh-REFERENCES: Burlington Directory, 1931 Interview with John Armstrong, 6/30/83 (Indicate North in Circle) SURROUNDING ENVIRONMENT: MAP: Open Land Woodland Scattered Buildings Moderately Built Up Densely Built Up Residential Commercial STREET Agricultural Industrial Roadside Strip Development[] Other: CHARLOT RECORDED BY: Karen Czaikowski ORGANIZATION:

ADDITIONAL ARCHITECTURAL OR STRUCTURAL DESCRIPTION:

It story irregular gable front square plan house with raking eaves, exposed rafter ends and knee brackets. Front gable hooded entrance with knee braces. North side shed roof dormer rises on extended gable. Paired gable front windows with 3 vertical/1 pane, simple surrounds. North side porch (enclosed) with chamfered box posts, slot railing, box cornice and trellis skirt. South side asphalt shingle hooded entrance with knee braces. Irregular fenestration with fixed windows. Interior center right chimney.

RELATED STRUCTURES: (Describe)

1-story, single bay, gable front asphalt roof with extended eave, clapbaord garage with overhead door altered on a concrete foundation. (10'x12') (c.1930's).

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE:

The extended slopes of the house and garage's gable roofs create a unique effect, when compared to surroundaing structures. This well-house and the Hawker house next door are the only stucco clad buildings in the neighborhood, but the Benard house has a gable front orientation. Both houses were built by a north Burlington German construction worker, Mr. Hauke.

SURVEY NUMBER:

ADDITIONAL ARCHITECTURAL OR STRUCTURAL DESCRIPTION: 1½ story eaves front rectangular plan house with raking eaves, exposed rafter ends, string course on gable end, with knee braces, and 1/1 sash windows in peaks. East-West shed roof, dormers with exposed rafter ends. Vertical upper panes over single window with plain surrounds. 1-story front porch with box posts and stucco base. South side hooded entrance porch with knee brackets. Rear interior left chimney.

RELATED STRUCTURES: (Describe)
1-story single bay, gable front asphalt roof garage with stucco siding and exposed rafter ends; single overhead door with simple surround; concrete foundation (10'x12') (1933).

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE:

This well preserved house and the Benard house next door are the only stucco clad buildings in the neighborhood. Both were built by a north Burlington German construction family, the Haukes. The present occupant, Pauline Hauke Hawker, is a descendant of this family. The garage is contemporary to the house, and in excellent condition.
